Design work for Systers Bangladesh

As a Co-Lead of Systers Bangladesh I created a 3 month social media plan for our online presence. Within that, I designed and created our potential draft for a logo, as well as color palettes.

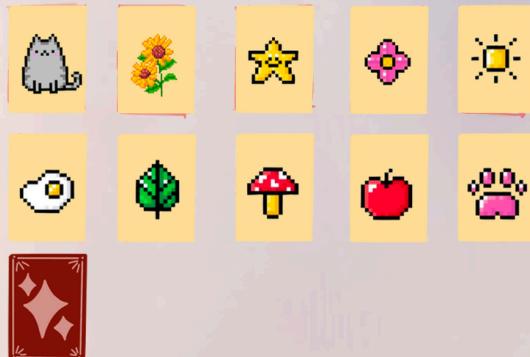

Future works involve creating an official branding guideline to be used in our Substack, podcast, and social media platforms.

Design work for video games

I created hand drawn assets for my video game development class using Procreate.

Card assets for a memory card matching game. For the same game, I hand drew the start and end buttons, the background as well as the end screen.

Promotional Work for LUX CWRU's Yearbook

As part of LUX CWRU's Yearbook, I was the PR Director, managing promotional content and rallying school spirit around the yearbook. Part of my work also included designing and creating flyers, coming up with LUX's brand and design, as well as creating spreads for the yearbook itself. Tools used are Canva.

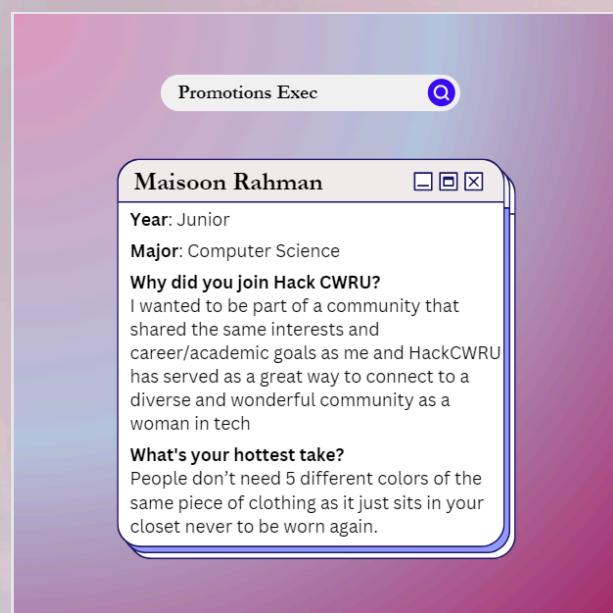

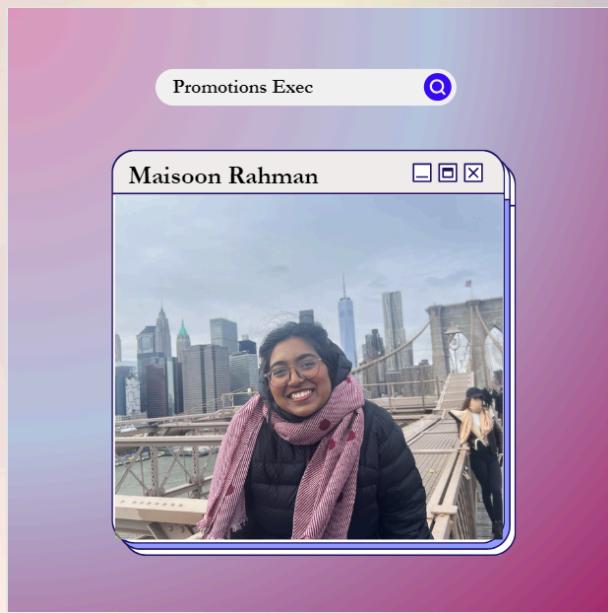

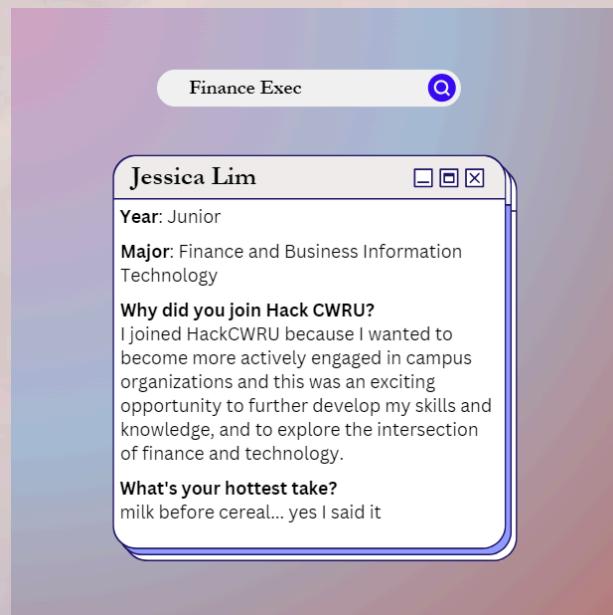

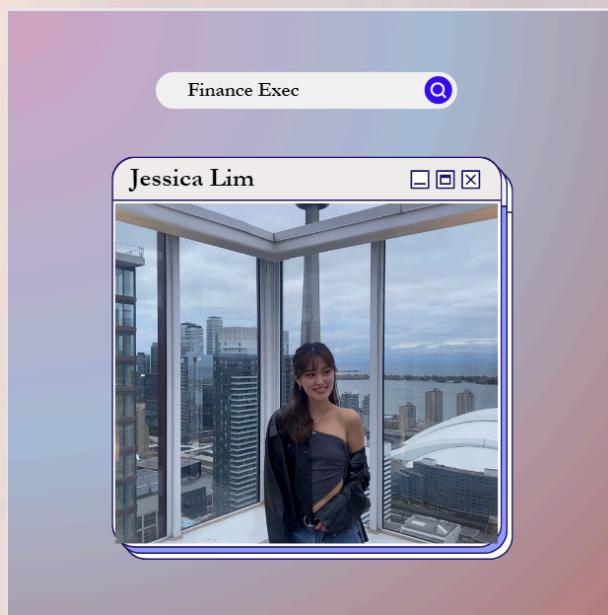

Above are some of the flyers I designed and created using our brand guidelines. The poster on the left is a yearbook promotional poster, advertising the yearbook itself. The poster on the right is an event poster for our members of the club.

Promotional Work for HackCWRU

I was a part of HackCWRU as PR Director where I was in charge of advertising the hackathon (our annual flagship event). My promotional work for HackCWRU included making exec introduction posts, flyers, registration posts, GB meeting posts, etc. Below is an “Exec spotlight” post. Tools used are Canva. .

Promotional Work for HackCWRU

I also took the lead on designing merchandise for the hackathon, such as tshirts, as well as stickers for the event while communicating promotional ideas with vendors. Below is the first draft of a tshirt design.

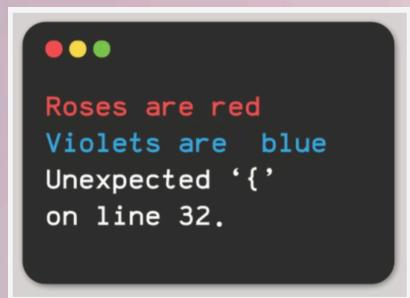

Due to budget and time constraints, the hackathon tshirts were simplified to just have the hackcwr in large in the middle of the tshirt. Below are proofs of some of the stickers I designed for the event.

Promotional Work for Iccheghuri

My previous work in Iccheghuri included working as a graphic designer for Project Arun, a project on period poverty in Bangladesh which aimed to address the lack of feminine hygiene products or education in regards to menstruation for people with periods. A lot of my work included making posters and graphics for this project as well as maintaining the Instagram account. Tools used are Procreate and Canva.

“Help us end the stigma around menstruation and menstrual hygiene”

“We aim to do our part in the conversation by launching our menstrual hygiene project. This includes publications that capture the prevailing conditions in underprivileged communities where taboo hinders access to proper menstrual hygiene, campaign to raise awareness in such communities and briefing on and distribution of menstrual hygiene materials(period products).”

“We need donations to help us distribute menstrual hygiene products. You can donate to 01727498603 on bKash.”

Promotional Work for Iccheghuri

As part of my graphic design work for Iccheghuri, I created this Instagram post promoting a fundraiser for Zahirul Mia, a rickshaw puller and the only breadwinnr of his family. I chose to make a portrait of him to showcase his resilience in looking after his family. Although he was recovering from an accident, he was still out earning money for his family. Through this portrait, I aimed to capture not just his image, but the essence of his strength, resilience, and determination. Each brushstroke serves as a testament to his hard work and perseverance, honoring his story in a way that goes beyond a simple photograph.

“ It’s been a year since I was able to pull my rickshaw without having to feel this immense pain in my leg— even though the bones have completely healed by now. The doctor says that the rods need to be removed or else the pain will only get worse. I don’t know how I will keep feeding my children if I can’t pull a rickshaw anymore. ”
